M. A. BATES HEADS B. OF T.

R. H. GILLET, VICE PRES. AND B. E. SMITH, SECY.-TREAS.

At a special meeting of the Directors of the Grayling Board of Trade held Monday night, Melvin A. Bates was elected president of that organization, to succeed Holger F. Peterson, whose term expired. Robert H. Gillett was elected vice president and Supt. B. E. Smith, secretary and treasurer.

To accept the presidency of a Board of Trade means to offer one's best talents and service in the interest of that community and the sacrifice of a lot of personal time and energy. And it means further a willingness to accept a lot of unjust criticism and, often times, sniping remarks.

However it is a great honor to serve in such a capacity and leaves a satisfaction and feeling that one is doing real things in the interest of his home city without remuneration or material reward. And with the knowledge that criticisms in almost every case come from those who contribute neither money nor assistance in a cause that deserves their best support, gives one the courage to forge ahead in spite of such criticisms. We are sure the Board of Directors have chosen wisely in selecting Mr. Bates to be the representative head of the organization.

While there is not the importance attached to the office of vice president here too it is essential to have a man who is a dyed-in-the-wool booster, and is always ready to wholeheartedly give his service in the interest of his community. Mr. Gillett has in many ways, proven his enthusiasm and always stands ready to give his best efforts and offer good sound judgment in matters of importance that arise in the conducting of the Board. In the campaign for membership last year Mr. Gillett personally turned in 65 new members, a record that we doubt will be duplicated for many years to come.

Supt. B. E. Smith has been the secretary-treasurer of the Board of Trade for the past two years and has filled this very responsible position in a most capable manner. He too, like all the officers, works without pay and gives a lot of his real valuable time. Quantities of correspondence comes to him that requires painstaking and intelligent attention, and has been handled by him promptly and well. He keeps a record of the proceedings and a general record of all matters that pass thru the hands of the Board. He was assisted partly by Carl W. Peterson, who attended to considerable of the work of mailing out notices and publicity, and wrote many letters, and did much valuable work.

The Board of Trade is surely in good hands and we trust that the good work will continue and that in the near future substantial results will follow the efforts that are being put forth for the promotion of the welfare of this community. Of course everything is not perfect in Grayling, in which we are no different than other towns, but we sincerely believe that there isn't a finer lot of people living in any city in the State, nor between here and California or New York. We have a delightful and healthy climate, wonderfully fine water, ideal geographic location, fine shipping facilities and back of these resources we have the people who stand ready to back up any legitimate and sound proposition with our efforts and our money that may be offered. If only everyone will get into the band wagon and get out of that sour and pessimistic disposition, we will be able to put Grayling over the top good and big. The future of this city depends upon us. If we succeed in growing bigger and better, we deserve the credit for it; if we fail, we alone are to blame.

Holger F. Peterson who has been at the helm of the Board for the past two years, did mighty good work and deserves the thanks of the community. He handled many matters and in almost every one was able to get somewhere. Those who have been close to the inside workings of the Board cannot help but feel a deep sense of appreciation for what Mr. Peterson has done. A resolution that was unanimously adopted by the Board of Directors at their meeting last Monday night, is an expression that is generally felt by the members of the Board. It reads, as follows:

WHEREAS Mr. Holger F. Peterson the retiring President of the Grayling Board of Trade has, during his incumbency of the office, given generously of his time and efforts towards accomplishing the purposes of the organization, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That this Board extend to him its sincere thanks and expression of appreciation for his conduct of the office.

And that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this meeting.

"A GREAT PIANIST" WRITES PHILIP HALE

By Philip Hale in Boston Herald Sept. 1, 1923.

Some undoubtedly think that Mr. Vladimir de Pachmann, pianist, is the egoist, of all egoists, for he is reported as saying when he landed in New York: "I am the great player, the greatest player. When I hear what I play, I say 'it is finished—a perfect thing, thank God.'" But those who have the pleasure of knowing Mr. de Pachmann outside the concert hall are not offended by this burst of self-appreciation. Nine out of 10 pianists, fiddlers, singers, even cornet players, think as well about themselves; they will admit that they are "the greatest" in private conversation, if any virtuoso desires privacy for a moment; but they are not so honest as Mr. de Pachmann in trumpeting their fame.

For that they hire press agents. Mr. de Pachmann is, indeed, a great pianist, the most poetic interpreter of Chopin that we know. No pianist produces more beautiful tones from an instrument which is for too many merely a box of jingling wires with a keyboard to be thumped.

It is true that Mr. de Pachmann's conversational abilities are so marked that his running comments on his own performance in the concert hall disturb those who look on virtuosos as more than mortals. The late John F. Runciman wrote in the Saturday Review that Mr. de Pachmann was playing in a certain hall: "No one should fail to see him." And the late "Sandy" Browne characterized Mr. de Pachmann when he first exhibited in Boston as "the Chopinizer." This does not prevent Mr. de Pachmann from being one of the few pianists that work a spell. He is the most "intimate" of all interpreters of Chopin. We regret to add that he is also a humorist, for in New York he said that Mr. Godowsky is the greatest living composer.

Mr. de Pachmann uses exclusively in America the famous Baldwin piano.

Debating.

The debating squad of the G. H. S. won their first debate of the season last Friday night when they outpointed their opponents, Gaylord, at Gaylord, 3-0, the three votes of the judges being in favor of our "Daniel Websters." The debate started out by the Gaylord affirmative speaker showing his reasons for the Ship Subsidy; he was followed by Alice Wellington, our first speaker for the negative. She was ably assisted by her colleagues, Marcella Sullivan and Don Reynolds. The affirmative points were not brought out clearly enough to influence the judges. Our debaters defeated them by a fair and square method, showing the authority behind our speeches and finding the "fish-hooks" in the Subsidy. Grayling offered a counter plan to the Subsidy and the Gaylord debaters were unable to tear it down. The next debate will be held at Alba, December 14th, Grayling still defending the negative side. The judges of the Gaylord-Grayling debate were, Mr. Starr of Manclona, Miss Mason of Cheboygan, and Mr. Boernor of Vanderbilt.

Use correct English. See our new International dictionary in the library.

Thanksgiving vacation begins Thursday. School will call Monday morning as usual.

This is no joke. The football boys had their pictures taken last week.

Jokes.

Edgar D.—"I want to buy a make-up box."

Storekeeper—"A make-up box? We don't keep cosmetics."

E. D.—"It's a box of candy I want. I'm two hours late for a date."

Officer—"Here, young man, it is against the law to spit on the floor."

Clarence L.—"Then why did you put up that sign?"

Officer—"What sign?"

C. L.—"Fine for spitting."

Lipman L.—"Why are you always late for class?"

Frank Schmidt—"Well, my socks are guaranteed not to run."

There is lack of courtesy in this school. Pupils are not polite to each other. There is a continuous clash of tempers, forgetfulness, impoliteness, and unkindness among the inhabitants of our school village.

To change this we should observe some of the following reminders:

1—Play the game square.

2—Do not rush in halls—think of others.

3—Avoid loud talking everywhere.

4—In every way be polite to everyone.

Miss Chapman—"What was the result of Lincoln's assassination?"

Beulah—"He died."

Horseback riding seems to be very popular among the school teachers.

We wish to state that the library is for the use of the school for reference work. We have a splendid number of reference books—make use of them. Renewals of subscriptions for several useful magazines have been made. Among them, Good Housekeeping, Review of Reviews, World's Work, etc.

Miss Kerrigan has been absent a week due to illness. Mrs. Milnes substituted.

The basket ball outline will be printed next week.

Grade Notes.

Due to the small amount of news to be obtained last week we did not publish any grade notes. We sincerely hope this will not happen again. The Tattler wishes the co-operation of all teachers.

Third grade will have a Thanksgiving party Wednesday afternoon after recess. Turkey and Pilgrim decorations enliven the room.

Jack Curtis has entered the 3rd A class, also Jacob Harder has entered the 3rd B class. We are very glad to have them.

Second grade will play games on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Thanksgiving. Genevieve Kloski will read a Thanksgiving story as she is an excellent reader.

First grade are arranging a Pilgrim scene on the sand table.

Kindergarten are cutting out pictures for Thanksgiving.

Visitors to the Kindergarten were Mrs. Emil Kraus, Mrs. Deffrain, Mrs. Fred Welsh, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Gorman. We are very glad to see the parents taking interest in the school work of their children.

Helena Harder has entered the 5th B class.

Friday afternoon Glenn Smith gave us an interesting account of his trip to New York state. He returned from the trip Friday morning.

For 5th grade language class the children pretended they were Pilgrim children and wrote letters to their cousins or friends in England telling

PINCHOT RIGHT AT LAST.

Governor Pinchot, who recently tried to saddle the responsibility for liquor violations first upon President Coolidge and then upon Secretary Mellon, has at last hit the right spot. He declared that "Upon our courts and judges rests the final responsibility for compelling respect for law. Action, swift, vigorous and unrelenting on their part, is the only sure way of curbing crime." There lies the only weak place in our law-enforcement machinery. Police-men, sheriffs, and Federal prohibition agents make plenty of arrests, and prosecuting attorneys conduct cases with diligence but the courts are slow in bringing defendants to trial, and when convictions are had, the penalties imposed are too often but a joke. Lenient judges are the best friends the bootleggers have.

By the time some men have learned to behave themselves they're too old to do anything else.

Candy will be sold and lunch served all day. So come and buy your Xmas gifts and help the good work these ladies are doing.

Some of the good remarks as the reporter got them from the Thanksgiving sermon Colossians 3 Chap. 15 verse, "And let the peace of God rule in your hearts to which also ye are called in one body and be ye thankful, thankful for a hountiful country and floating flag. Do we have the right appreciation of the blessing bestowed of our schools, churches, homes, etc."

"It isn't childish but child like to be thankful we have lost the spirit of our forefathers who were truly thankful for small things, we should be thankful for our relation to the great Deity for mercies, for the protecting hand which is over us and last but not least our redemption." The writer regrets very much she is unable to quote more of Rev. Hart's excellent sermon. As it would prove greatly beneficial to all who would have the opportunity of reading it who were unable to be present.

Rev. Hart also gave a talk on the work being done by the Red Cross.

CORRECTING AN ERROR.

A certain newspaper attempted to correct a typographical error in the following manner: "We wish to apologize for the way we disgraced the beautiful wedding last week. Thru an error of the typesetter, we were made to say, 'the roses were pink.' What we should have said was, 'the noses were pink.'"

LAURA WERNO LADIES QUARTET

The Laura Werner Ladies Quartet is a group of artist-entertainers who are royally welcomed by Lyceum audiences wherever they appear.

From the beginning to the close of their program there is a feast of musical entertainment and artistry. Especially notable are musical and dramatic numbers, given in costume, depicting the dress, manners and songs of the American Colonial period, the Civil War days, the early seventies and of the Quakers.

The members of the Werner Company play as well as sing. Instrumental trios and cello and violin solos are prominent on the program.

A cutting from the well-known play, "Smilin' Through," given by Miss Laura Werner, who heads the company, is always hailed with delight, as are other clever sketches given by her.

Among the varied vocal numbers is a soprano solo, "The Doll Song," from the "Tales of Hoffmann."

The type of program, the skill with which it is presented and the poise and personality of the members of the Quartet all unite to make their program one of genuine enjoyment.

Tudor SEDAN
$590 Fully Equipped

The Lowest Priced Sedan

IN the Tudor Sedan a wholly new Ford body type is offered American motorists.

It is distinguished by a compact, roomy body, two wide doors opening forward, and folding right front seat. It is a car you can get into easily, drive handily, and park quickly.

Long-panel windows affording an open view in every direction, make for safer driving and greater motoring enjoyment.

Upholstery is both attractive and serviceable.

At $590, this is the lowest priced Sedan ever placed on the American market. Combining all the familiar Ford qualities with the utility of its distinctive body type, it is a car of broad appeal and compelling value.

Brilliant Midwinter Hats;

Breakfast Caps and Bandeaux

SINCE the majority of women choose their winter garments in sedate shades they should be thankful to their millinery for bringing into their costumes a touch of color that relieves the monotony of black, brown and dark blue. Mid-winter hats, regardless of their outline, are, for the most part, colorful. The influence of Persia and China introduced in early fall models still lingers in turban shapes of metal cloth and in rich and intricate embroideries on velvet or satin. Even when black is used for novel ways and reflect the preferences of the mode in color.

In the caps there is a wide variety of shape, but the proportion of bands, to be worn instead of caps, has increased, probably because there are now so many hatted-haired young people who do not need a cap.

Two caps and one band, shown in the picture, suggest gifts that can be made by the donor and, therefore, are sure of a double welcome at Christmas. A youthful model, at the top, is made of plain, cream-colored net, which the body of the hat it is usually set off with bright trimmings or sparkling ornaments of silver or rhinestones.

How effectively designers introduce color in their creations may be seen in the group of hats pictured here. The little cloche shown at the top is of black velvet with a sectional crown embroidered in vivid colors and beaded with silver beads. At the right is a matron's hat of henna velvet trimmed with a veil and ostrich plume of the same shade. A tiny wreath of flowers ornaments the upturned brim.

The crown is covered with strips of ribbon, with the short bias ends brought together at the top and gathered into a rosette, and a long silk tassel is fastened at the center. The headband is of lace insertion with a frill of narrow lace at one edge and a border of tiny silk flowers at the other.

A dignified black-and-gold combination appears in the cap at the right, in which plain satin ribbon in the two colors is used in basket weave for the crown center, and black lace, shirred into two puffs and a frill, for the cap. A sash of gold-satin ribbon, finished with a bow and long ends at the back, is adorned with little rosettes of gold-edged black satin ribbon, centered with tiny gold roses.

quills dyed in the same colors as the brocade. Two tones of blue velvet are used in making the hat at the right. The crown sections are embroidered in bright-colored chenille and gold thread and a narrow band of gold ribbon completes the trimming.

Pretty breakfast caps and headbands always find themselves in universal demand at Christmas time, and the new vintage is all ready for gathering in. These cheerful little affairs were never more alluringly pretty than they are this year, and never more varied. The usual ribbons, laces, nets and small flowers are used for making them, but have been put together in and rosette of net, as pictured, is among the most successful of these rivaled of the cap. Narrow ties of satin ribbon fasten it at the back and the rosette is centered with little ribbon roses.

These head bands vary in width and are often adjusted so that they tie at the side, just back of the ear, at a saucy angle. Head bands made of metallic ribbon in gold or silver, are very popular for evening wear, and fasten under the hair at the back.

A Tale of the Flatwoods

THE BOUND BOY

Three generations ago life on the banks of the Wabash was the life of the frontier—the life of the backwoods—the life of the outposts of civilization. Life there was simple and strenuous. Men were strong and the primitive emotions swayed them. And this is a tale of the days of our grandfathers and of those conditions.

David Anderson, a native of this region, knows it as few do. His "Blue Moon," which told of the pearl fishers, was a great success. "The Red Lock" takes up a time a little later—when the pearl fishers were giving place to permanent settlers. It is a tale of the Flatwoods.

Yes, we have no canal construction in this story. The red lock is a lock of hair recurring in the generations of the Collins—an inheritance from a pirate ancestor who even in those days was regarded as an undesirable citizen. And this red lock played the mischief with any Colin so adorned.

So we have Ken Collins, who mysteriously disappeared, red lock and all; Texie, his pretty and loyal sister; Big Jack—bound boy who loves Texie; and various other characters, some of whom are involved in the results of the reappearance of the red lock.

Nature lovers and woodsmen will find much here to interest them. For the author is close to nature's heart and his pages show his relationship. And Big Jack is an adept in woodcraft, with an efficient eye for an enemy's trail and the quickness of the wild animal life of the Flatwoods.

CHAPTER I

The Bound Boy.

A girl came out of the back yard of a red-roofed cottage at the up-stream edge of Buckeye, passed around a rather tastefully built barn, with its slanting eaves and pens, crossed the fallow pasture lot in a corner of which it stood, climbed the fence and picked her way up the face of the cliffs that roughly walled the village on three sides, until she stood at last among the jagged and broken pinacles at the top of Black Rock, a lighter speck against the gray green background of the Flatwoods.

Away beyond the bend where the placid Wabash lost itself among the hills, the sun crawled toward the rim of the West. Pendant above the distant timber line its round splendor, burnished bright by the wonder of May, turned a lingering glance at the serene world.

But the girl was not watching the sunset. The splendor of the wide-spread landscape at her feet was lost on her.

Crawling out from under the sunset, halving the village and winding away up the river between cliff and bottom, ran the River road, the one slim artery that connected Buckeye with the great world outside the Flatwoods.

The girl's eyes were on the road. Far up the river—twenty miles of gravel and gray sand—it led to the city. On clear days she had sometimes made out the hazy whiteness of its roofs and spires—the gateway of another world—a world that the errant fancies of girlhood peopled with many a wonder.

Seven years ago to a day she had stood there and watched the Milford stage carry her brother away to the end of that road—through the dim-spread gateway and out into the great world beyond. The East—it swallows up many a man of the West. It had swallowed her brother up. It never gave him back.

The eyes, grown pensive, turned slowly to the upstanding pinnacle of sandstone, polished smooth by a thousand winds, alive in the bronze glow that struck up from the distant hills. Three names had been rudely carved there, one above the other, so long ago that storm and frost had begun to obliterate them.

The girl picked up a piece of ragged shale and with a sharp corner scraped clean each knife stroke, till the three names stood out clear as the day they were first carved there:

KEN
JACK

She dropped the piece of shale; thoughtfully passed her fingers over the names and glanced down at the foot of the upstanding pinnacle. In a sheltered pocket of the great rock, where only the tempered rays of the sun could strike it, lay a tiny bed of leaf mold set with clumps of yellow orchids not yet abloom—"lady slippers," in the quaint and expressive vernacular of the Wabash country—that had doubtless been transplanted from the deep woods.

The girl stooped above the tiny flower bed—a friendly spot in its setting of stern rocks; plucked away an obstructive weed or two; let her sobered eyes stray back to the red-roofed cottage, across a small orchard that lay spread at her feet, and out over the rather pretentious farmstead to which the orchard belonged.

Pretentious—just that; a promise of comfort and affluence never fulfilled. There was every evidence that the farmstead had been laid out on a scale much more elaborate than was usual in the Flatwoods, but nothing had been finished—an attempt that failed; a dream that never came true.

Outlined among the weeds and encroaching brambles lay the extensive foundation of the farmhouse, but it had been carried little beyond the foundation. A few shillings—huge squared logs, cut and hewed in the upland woods—had been laid. Of the few timbers of the superstructure, some had fallen entirely, others had fallen at one end and hung straining, while even the firmest canted far out of plumb.

Back of this creaking skeleton of time-blackened timbers, and nearer the cliff, stood a mile of a log cabin, rudely constructed, where doubtless a man had housed while dreaming his unfinished dream of house and barns and happy homestead. Rooted beside the door and almost completely covering the cabin, a crimson rambler of many years' growth—a far wanderer that no surroundings can degrade—offered a fragrant suggestion that a woman had shared the dreams of the man.

Three horses grazed in the barn lot down near a big elm that stood at the road gate; some geese squatted along the diminutive rivulet leading from the spring; out in the feed lot lolled a bunch of cattle, fine and thrifty as could have been seen the length of the Wabash.

The eyes of the girl suddenly waked from brooding; darted to a point a short distance up the cliff; layened. The slouch hat and drab corduroy hunting blouse of a tall young woodsman with an immense spread of shoulder had fitted past a break in the bushes as he sprang down the steep and rugged path that picked its way among the rocks from the uplands. She was just in time to see him reach up, put his hand on the top rail of the fence and vault over into the barn lot. The girl missed a breath. Few men in the Flatwoods could have made that leap.

Down by the big elm at the road gate, one of the horses, a powerful gelding, glossy black save for one white lock in his foretop, raised his head; came trotting up the lot. The big woodsman put his arm about the arched neck; laid his face against the glossy mane and stroked the soft nose. "Good ol' Graylock!" he muttered—"bound 'r free, 't you a man's a man!"

A shadow subdued the bold frankness of his face, as a chance cloud draws across a fair field; he gazed hard at the wind-staggered skeleton of the unfinished farmhouse.

His roving eye, following the glow of approaching sunset, found the girl upon the rock, her plant body softly outlined against the silver-green background of the woods.

"Texie—w-y!"

In another moment he was racing up the cliff. The girl was waiting for him by the upstanding pinnacle of sandstone, a half sadness in her eyes that gradually subdued the eagerness in his. He laid his big hand on her shoulder; slid it down her arm and gathered her fingers in his great palm. There was not even a twitch of response. He dropped the fingers, backed away a step and stood studying her.

"Jack—? Do y'a know what day this is?"

He puzzled to find the answer she doubtless had in mind; finally ventured the only one he could think of—"Tuesday, May 10th, 1848."

She stared around at him. "You know that ain't what I mean." The girl pointed to the carved names on the month of sandstone. He followed the motion; stepped past her and ran his hand over the three names, lingering an instant over the middle one.

"Pore Ken—" he muttered—"he could 'a' ben anything he wanted to, a most."

The girl's eyes flinched and turned back to the dim frayed end of the road; the man stood silent.

"Seven years ago t'day," she mused, "you and me stood up here on Black rock and watched the Milford stage haul 'im away off yonder to the city and out in the big world 't college and then we—cut them names—"

She paused. He seemed to feel that an answer was expected of him, but made none.

"Two years we got letters—wonderful ones at first. I 'low you ain't forgot how we use 't come up here—you and me—and read 'em." She spoke more to herself than to him. "Then the letters got fewer and farther 'tween, till finally they got s' 't'fin' ther' wasn't no satisfaction in gittin' 'em."

"Then, y'u know, that terrible one come from the president of the college, tellin' how awful—Ken was ear-ryin' on, and advisin' father 't take 'im home. But he never come, and a little while afterwards the president writ another letter, tellin' how Ken had—killed a man and run away from school, leavin' all them debts. That was five years ago—and the last we ever heard—"

And What Word Could Alter the Stern Fact That He Was a Bounty Boy—Bound Out to Her Own Father.

It is curious and interesting how some of the greatest names of the Anglo-Saxon race have lodged, like rattle-drawn, along the byways and waterways of what was once the great American woods.

Ken, Texie, Jack—the first two Collins; the third a Warhope—names that have been spread wide on English history. And of the two ancient families, probably no purer strain existed than the far-flung thread that had found lodgment here in this out-of-the-way corner of the earth—the great Flatwoods that seventy years ago stretched for many an unbroken mile along the north bank of the upper Wabash.

The man swept a hand toward the distant end of the road. The girl glanced at him.

"Ten more days—there was a strained firmness in his voice, as if what he was about to say came hard to him—"and I'm ridin' out yonder m'elf."

He felt her eyes upon him.

"Ten more," he went on. "This is the tenth of May. When it's the twentieth, I'll be twenty-one—and free. Ten more—I be'n countin' 'em."

A deep seriousness clouded his face; he stared down at the warped skeleton of the unfinished farmhouse. The girl tumbled the bit of ribbon at her waist.

"My father dreamed that dream," he went on. "B'fore it could come true, the Seminoles bolted their reservation and he dropped everything and rushed away to the head of the rangers. You know how he—fell at Okechobee." He paused a moment; gripped his hat and went on. "Mother never saw a well day no more. You know how she lingered along down there under the rose vine till I was twelve. When she—died, it was found out Pap Simon had a mortgage on everything. He foreclosed; had me—bound out to 'im; and—"

The girl stole a look at his face. It was so hard and bitter that she dared not venture a word. And what word could alter the stern fact that he was a bound boy—bound out to her own father?

"Wild and savage and terrible, like ol' 'Red Collin' must 'a' looked."

TOIL LONG ON BRIDAL GOWNS

Mothers of Girls on Island in Dutch West Indies Work Six Years on Dress.

On the Island of Madura, in the Dutch West Indies, the girls marry when they are very young. Twelve years is the average when a girl takes on the responsibility of making a home. In fact, if she were unmarried at fourteen she would be considered an "old maid."

The bridal gown is a very complicated, gorgeous and valuable garment, hand-woven silk being the base of the wedding dress.

After this beautiful material has been woven there comes the tedious work of embroidery. Thousands of tiny stitches are taken and the most beautiful colors are worked into the silk.

Even when the gown is at this stage of construction it is quite a gorgeous and imposing affair. But the final decoration has not been started yet.

Now comes the gold which is added. Into the skirt, around the waist and over the shoulders are applied very beautifully filigree designs of hand beaten gold.

In Madura it takes many a mother all the spare hours of six years to make one of these gorgeous wedding dresses.

ANOTHER NURSE PRAISES TANLAC

Mrs. Leona Culpepper, 17 Lucile Avenue, who was a trained nurse for fifteen years, is another highly esteemed Atlanta woman whose gratitude and desire to help others prompts her to tell of the wonderful results she derived from the Tanlac treatment.

"I had suffered from nervous indigestion and loss of appetite for four or five years," said Mrs. Culpepper, "and was nearly always nauseated. I had heartburn so bad I could hardly stand it, and became so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework."

"Reading what Tanlac had done for others, I decided to try it, and by the time I finished the first bottle I was feeling so much better that I bought two more. When I had finished the third bottle I was feeling fine and had actually gained sixteen pounds. Tanlac is all that is claimed for it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute.—Advertisement.

A New Requirement. "Nowadays a man can hardly marry unless he can show the girl two licenses."

Health and good looks

—the reward of internal cleanliness

HEALTH and good looks go hand in hand. If you do not keep clean internally, your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks, and insomnia—each of which saps your health and vitality. Soon much more serious conditions follow.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

HYPO-COD MADE THIS SAGINAW MAN WELL

He Had Such A Pain In His Back That He Could Not Work Until He Took Earle's Hypo-Cod

Mr. W. E. Johnson, of 335 N. Third Ave., Saginaw, Mich., writes that, "I suffered from a severe backache which the doctors called Lumbago. I would have cold chills and pains in my back and side until I could hardly move, and I had tried everything, but nothing seemed to help me until I started to take Hypo-Cod. The second day after starting to take this wonderful medicine I began to move around a little, and noticed that I did not have near as severe pains. After taking one bottle I was able to go back to work, and after the second bottle my Lumbago, as they called it, was a thing of the past. I have gained in weight, strength and all around health, and I believe that I am better in every way since taking Hypo-Cod." "Too many people suffer like Mr. Johnson when there is no reason why they should. Hypo-Cod is bringing health and happiness to many Michigan homes, and there is no reason if you are in ill health why you should not benefit by taking this great health builder. It is pleasant and easy to take with none of the oily, fishy taste of the Cod Liver Oil. In fact it has a pleasant wine-like flavor. Bread.

What would a meal be without bread? Very few people could answer that question for bread has been a part of every meal for almost everybody for years and years. Bread is rich in every substance, maintains health and promotes vigor. Rightfully, it can be called the basis of all meals. Bread, too, is the most economical of foods.
You, too, can make your own bread. No matter how young and untired a housekeeper, you need not hesitate to attempt the following recipes.
White Bread.
1 quart lukewarm water.
2 tablespoonfuls sugar.
2 cakes of yeast.
2 tablespoonfuls lard or butter melted.
3 quarts sifted flour.
1 tablespoonful salt.
This is a quick method of making white bread. One cake of yeast will suffice, but two cakes will produce quicker, stronger fermentation and better bread.
Dissolve yeast and sugar in lukewarm water, add lard or butter and half the flour. Beat until smooth, then add salt and balance of the flour, or enough to make dough that can be handled. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl, cover and set aside in a moderately warm place, free from draught, until light about one and one half hours.
Mold into loaves. Place in well greased pans filling them half full. Cover and let rise one hour, or until double in bulk. Bake forty-five to sixty minutes.
If a richer loaf is desired use milk in place of part or all of the water. This recipe makes three large loaves.
Rye Bread—American.
1 cup milk scalded and cooled.
2 cups lukewarm water.
1 cake of yeast.
5 cups rye flour.
1 1/2 cups sifted white flour.
1 tablespoonful lard or butter, melted.
1 tablespoonful salt.
Rye Bread is particularly rich in protein—that most valuable body building element. Its zest and piquant flavor make it a welcome change served "just so" or made into sandwiches with a variety of fillings.
Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water, add two and one half cups rye flour or enough to make sponge. Beat well. Cover and set aside in a warm place, free from draught to rise about two hours.

When light, add white flour, lard or butter, rest of rye flour, or enough to make a soft dough, and the salt. Turn on a board and knead or pound five minutes. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until double in bulk, about two hours.
Turn on board and shape into long loaves. Place in shallow pans, cover and let rise again until light—about one hour. Brush with white of egg and water, to glaze. With sharp knife cut lightly three strokes diagonally across top, and place in oven. Bake in slower oven than for white bread. One tablespoonful Caraway seed may be used if desired. This recipe makes two loaves.
Note: By adding one half cup of sour dough, left from previous baking, an acid flavor is obtained which is considered by many a great improvement. This should be added to the sponge.
Best results are assured with Fleischmann's yeast.
Steamed Bread Pudding.
2 cups fresh or stale bread crumbs.
1/2 cup chopped suet.
1 cup hot water.
1 cup flour.
1 cup molasses.
1 cup currants.
1 teaspoon soda.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1/2 teaspoon powdered cinnamon.
1 teaspoon powdered ginger.
1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg.
Few blanched almonds.
1 egg.
Grease a mold and decorate it with almonds. Pour hot water over bread crumbs, add molasses, suet, flour, soda, spices, currants, salt and egg well beaten. Turn into prepared mold, cover with greased paper and steam steadily for two and a half hours. Serve with hot milk or sweet sauce.
Bread Molasses Tart.
8 tablespoonfuls fresh bread crumbs.
8 tablespoonfuls molasses.
1 lemon.
2 cups flour.
1/2 cup lard or butter.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
Water.
Sift flour into a basin, then rub lard lightly into it, add salt and enough water to make a stiff paste. Roll it out and line a buttered tin or platter with it. Mix bread crumbs, molasses

JOHN BRADY PASSED AWAY

WAS 91 YEARS OLD. BURIAL AT PALMS, MICH.
At 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning, occurred the death of John Brady, Sr. at the home of his son John in this city at the ripe old age of 91 years. The old gentleman has been in a feeble condition for over a year, so that he could scarcely leave his home, and since the first of November has been confined to his bed. The funeral was held Tuesday morning with services at St. Mary's church, Rev. Fr. A. O. Boster celebrating the mass. The remains were taken on the noon train to Palms, Mich., for burial.
Mr. Brady was born in Canada, his parents, Bridget Daily and Joseph Brady being natives of Ireland. He was a farmer by trade, but many years ago retired from his toils and made his home among his children, in whose homes he had every comfort.
Mr. Brady came to Grayling seven years ago. He was a grand old gentleman, and a staunch and devoted member of the Roman catholic faith. He is survived by six daughters and two sons, Mrs. Margaret Sullivan, Mackinaw; Mrs. J. C. Rittenhouse, Cheboygan; Mrs. T. L. Brennan, East Jordan; Mrs. B. J. Callahan, Frederic; Mrs. F. Klack, Battle Creek; Frank Brady, of Owosso and John Brady, Jr., of this city. All the above were present at the funeral of their father. Mr. Brady was also the father of the late Mrs. Mary Shanahan.

and grated rind and strained juice of lemon; spread over the pastry and bake in hot oven thirty minutes or until the pastry is quite cooked. Serve hot or cold.
"Macaroni"—Excellent.
There is something about Spaghetti and Macaroni that many of us like. That is why one often hears "let's go to Pietro's or Giannetti's and have a real Italian dinner," and even on the menu cards of American restaurants, you will find "Spaghetti a la Milanese" or "Spaghetti Au Gratin," tucked away in some corner, because there is a growing demand for that toothsome and really healthful dish.
At first, Macaroni was a stranger to us, but now we are acquainted, and we even know that at one time it was named after the palates of the Italians. It remained for a nobleman to give it its appellation. It was the first time he had ever tasted some slender tubes of wheat paste made savory by a generous amount of grated cheese and tomato sauce.
With the very first mouthful he exclaimed "Cari," meaning good. At the second mouthful, "Ma cari," meaning excellent, and at the third mouthful, "Ma caroni," meaning excellent and wonderful.

HE'S EVER WITH US.
It is said that a man who won't take his home paper because he can borrow one has invented a machine by which he can cook his dinner by the smoke of his neighbor's chimney. The same fellow sits in the back pew in church to save interest on his contributions and is always borrowing a ride to town to save the wear and tear on his "lizzie." Yes, we know him. He is a first cousin of the man who used the wart on the back of his neck for a collar button.

Ford Trucks Are Bought On Performance Records

If you were to ask a hundred—or a thousand—Ford truck owners why they use Ford trucks in preference to all others, they would likely say, "Because the Ford stands up."
They know that under the endless grind of daily service the Ford stays on the job month in and month out, with very little mechanical care, and with practically no expense for repairs or replacements. They buy to get performance.
A few might add that the Ford is the lowest priced truck on the market. But they would emphasize the work this truck does, not its initial cost, in accounting for the fact that there are more Ford Trucks in use today than all other makes combined.

Michigan Happenings

Prominent officials of the Michigan Agricultural College, working on the excavation for the new Union Memorial Building during "Excavation Week," proved conclusively that they can man pick and shovel and hold their own with the best of the student toilers. President Robert S. Shaw started this demonstration when he took his place with the second shift of workers. He not only stayed his full half day, but he set a pace that kept his co-workers laboring at top speed.

Smith Hawley, 76 years old, one of the best known fruit growers in Western Michigan, died at his farm home in Summit Township, near Ludington. An early member and past president of the Michigan Horticultural Society, Mr. Hawley was the pioneer of this district in preaching the gospel of spraying as a means of raising better fruit. He conducted experiments in this line long before the Michigan Agricultural College had in tailed its extension course.

After having served six years on the Council and having been influential in Kalamazoo politics for nearly 40 years, James Alexander Taylor, former alderman from the Fifth Ward, went before the Circuit Court last week for his naturalization papers. Taylor, until a year ago, believed that he had been a citizen since 1899, his father having taken out his first papers in that year when the future alderman still was a minor.

The Catholic students of the University of Michigan have forsaken their chapel at the corner of State and Jefferson avenue to worship Sunday in a movie theater so that their building may be remodeled into classrooms. This step has been taken in accordance with an agreement entered into between the Rev. Fr. Michael Burke, pastor of the chapel and the University, at the time the University purchased the property last year.

There is a swing bridge over the Grand River at Eastmanville which for five years has required the services of a bridge tender, always ready to swing the bridge. But during the five years not a single draft vessel has passed through the bridge. The practically useless draw bridge cost $16,000 more than an ordinary bridge and the tender receives $175 a month for his services in waiting for a boat to arrive.

Just as Arenac County is building for a permanent agriculture by shifting from bean growing to dairying, Osego County is preparing for future prosperity by turning from its single crop of potatoes to a diversified system of farming which includes dairying, poultry raising, seed production and a crop rotation calculated to maintain fertility of the soil.

Albion has returned to Central Standard time for the winter, after having been on daylight saving for six months. Petitions to have Eastern time the year round are being freely signed but no action will be taken by the council at present. The people may be asked to vote on the question at the spring election.

Jacob H. Lewis, of Saginaw, 96 years old, first white settler in Tittabawassee Township, died recently. He came to this section nearly 70 years ago and was a school teacher and preacher, riding out among the Indians to spread the gospel. He was supervisor from his township for five terms.

Conrad N. Church, for several years a Michigan newspaper man, has left Ann Arbor for Blytheville, Ark., where he will become editor and publisher of the Blytheville Courier. He has been succeeded as managing editor of the Ann Arbor Times-News by R. Ray Baker, of Grand Rapids.

While oiling the upper part of the machinery of a windmill at a height of about 35 feet, a moving part of the mechanism pinched Floyd Herring, a farmer living near Marcellus and knocked him from the platform to the ground below, crushing his body from the hips down.

The Michigan State Board of Pharmacy has elected J. C. Dykeman, of Grand Rapids, president, and O. Gorenflo, Detroit, vice-president.

James Colling, of Fostoria, 81 years old, was the oldest of 100 Tuscola county hunters who sought deer in the northlands.

A special committee appointed by Warren R. Townsend, chairman of the county road commission, have been seeking available sites for two state tourist camps for Kent County. It will be proposed that the State and county divide the purchase price.

Michigan has had 364 drownings in the last 12 months, or almost one for every day in the year. Throughout the nation 6,000 men, women and children lost their lives last year according to reports compiled recently.

Of the 9,000 students on the University of Michigan campus, 6,015 are church members, 1,379 signified some "church preference," and 1,664 failed to give any information on the religious census blanks when registering, according to statistics compiled by the Student Christian association.

Civil war veteran Andrew J. Boyington, 83 years old, of Iron River, died recently. He was one of three surviving civil war veterans.

To help restore the Imperial library of Japan, which was destroyed by the recent earthquake and fire, the University of Michigan is shipping to Japan all university publications that can be obtained. W. W. Bishop, librarian, has announced. "Few people realize the loss in an educational way that resulted from the fire," Bishop said. "In the Imperial library alone there were 300,000 volumes in active use and about 300,000 in storage. Among them were priceless manuscripts and some of the best scientific books and papers of Europe and America."

A course in floriculture in the public schools, assisted by maintenance of green-houses has been proposed by Mayor Julius Tisch, of Grand Rapids, to superintendent of schools, W. A. Greeson. "You teach printing and yet few of the children will be printers; you teach blacksmithing; yet few will be blacksmiths; you teach carpenter work but you do not teach the culture of flowers, although probably the students some day will have a little garden plot of their own," the mayor told the school head.

Frank Rogers, state highway commissioner, led a delegation of Michigan citizens to Michigan City to join in Indiana's celebration of the official opening of the Dunes highway. Opening of the highway gives a lakeshore good road from Chicago to the Michigan line. Completion of Michigan's good roads program will give a good route to any important point in the state, as the highway connects with M-11, which goes up to the west shore, and M-23, which leads to Detroit.

Every state in the Union and 26 foreign countries are represented by the 3,840 alumnae of the University of Michigan, who have matriculated here since the year 1870, when the university became a co-educational institution, according to figures compiled by officers of the women's league building campaign. Michigan leads all other states with 4,268 alumnae; Illinois is second with 620; Ohio third with 553, and New York fourth, with 614.

The state public utilities commission has authorized the consolidation of the Lake Superior and Ishpeming railway company with the Munising, Marquette and Southeastern railway. The commission, in its order stated that in its opinion the consolidation is for the best interests of the territory served. The consolidated company will operate under the name of the Lake Superior and Ishpeming.

Approximately 900 high school students in 164 high schools throughout the state debated the question, "Resolved, that the adoption of a ship subsidy would be a wise national policy." Debates were held under the supervision of the State High School Debating League, which is under the general direction of the University of Michigan extension division.

Floyd Field, 23 years old, of Sault Ste. Marie, is dead as the result of the first fatal hunting accident this season in Chippewa County's deer hunting grounds. Getting out of his car, Field allowed the butt of his rifle to crash onto the running board. The bullet struck him in the stomach. Death followed in 10 minutes.

Tentative plans for a building which will provide for an orchestra hall, an auditorium with a seating capacity of 5,000 with convention accommodations, and space for a permanent furniture exhibit, have been laid before the Association of Commerce by the Grand Rapids Orchestra Association.

The Gogebic County board of supervisors has repealed the bounty on wolves and coyotes that was voted a month ago. The judiciary committee was instructed to draw up a more comprehensive resolution on bounties before the board would again consider the question.

Ralph Ek, 20 years old, of Grand Rapids, attended the Lansing-Muskegon football game recently, and tried to leave the field by scaling the fence. As he jumped, the thing he was wearing caught in one of the iron pickets, pulling off his finger at the second joint.

Michigan hunters visiting Canada this year have found that they not only have to capture the game but pay for it. A tariff of 4 cents a pound is charged on deer brought over the boundary.

Henry J. Shorvas, 80 years old, county treasurer of Monroe from 1902 to 1906. Civil war veteran and former supervisor of Frenchtown, died recently.

Grand Rapids women are being enlisted in a movement to establish for this city a Woman's City club building similar to those in Detroit, Cleveland and other cities. A campaign to enroll 1,000 members will be begun as soon as a permanent organization can be completed.

Mrs. Eugene Houde was the first Menominee woman this season to bag a deer. It weighed 180 pounds. Few women in Cloverland applied for hunting licenses.

John Southard, 23 years old, fell into a corn shredder on his father's farm, seven miles southwest of Allegan while doing some repair work on top of the machine. His right leg was so badly mangled that it had to be amputated above the knee and he suffered a compound fracture of the left leg.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Senator Johnson Challenges Coolidge and Others to Direct Primary Fight.

STRESEMANN CABINET IS OUT

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON of California, avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, has started into making things lively for his rivals, including President Coolidge. He has warned them that he proposes to make a determined fight in every state against "hand-picked" delegations, and challenged them to meet him in the primaries in a straight-out contest. His statement, issued from Washington, is supposed to have been the result of unwarranted intimations that Mr. Coolidge would not make a direct campaign for state delegations, relying largely on delegates from states that have no direct primaries, and on those which would turn to him after their favorite states have been eliminated from competition.

"I insist that the rank and file of the Republican party have a right to express themselves as to the candidate of the party for the presidency," Senator Johnson said. "I am seeking to have that preference expressed. I shall accept the determination of the voters with equanimity and philosophy. I do not fear to go before the people upon that which I believe, and no other man who is a candidate should hesitate to have those whose support he asks express themselves on his candidacy."

"The members of the party, rather than a few self-constituted bosses, are entitled to select the candidate. We are going to put it up to the American people. I insist that all candidates should go before the people on the same principle."

Senator Johnson indicated that his main fight would be made in such states as Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Nebraska and New Jersey. He is looked on with considerable favor by many Illinois Republicans, but must contend with the strong followings of Coolidge and Lowden. In Indiana Senator James E. Watson says he may become a candidate "if for no other reason than to keep the state's delegation from Hiram Johnson."

While he is too radical for such men as Watson, the California is too conservative to suit the other Senator Johnson. Magnus from Minnesota. That loud-speaker arrived in the national capital and told the pop-eyed world that Hiram was a backslider from the cause of progressivism, that the third party movement was growing very strong, and that the farmers must be given protection against their enemies, the grain and dairy companies. He seems to be right about the third party movement. Indeed, a third party was formally organized in Chicago by a group under the leadership of J. A. H. Hopkins of New York and the call for its convention, to be held May 30, was issued.

Another meeting of progressive groups was held in Omaha and representatives of fifteen states endorsed Ford for president and called a convention at Detroit December 12.

WILLIAM G. MCADOO had his first test of strength among the Democrats last week in South Dakota, where the county proposal conventions were held. Ford supporters were his chief opponents, and while results are not yet quite definite, it appears that McAdoo won throughout the state by at least two to one. The Republicans were fairly divided between Coolidge and Hiram Johnson. Most of the Farmer-Labor conventions named unopposed delegations to the state convention.

DR. STRESEMANN and his cabinet fell soon after the reassembling of the reichstag, as had been expected. The chancellor made a long and pessimistic statement, winding up with the declaration that Germany's internal condition was hopeless and that he could not see the slightest prospect of improvement, and the offer to relinquish office if the reichstag considered it necessary. He was heckled by the Communists and others, and when he demanded a vote of confidence this was refused him by a vote of 230 to 155. He and his ministers at once resigned. At this writing it seems likely that the new chancellor will be either Herr Leitch of the Bavarian People's party or Dr. Albert, who was in charge of the propaganda bureau of the German embassy in Washington before America entered the war.

Had Stresemann been able to defer the vote in the reichstag for a quarter of an hour he might have been upheld, for the news came, just too late, that the industrial magnates of the Ruhr and the Rhineland had signed a treaty with the French which is expected to bring comparative peace and prosperity to the occupied regions, since under it the coal and steel plants will resume operations.

In Upper Silesia the organized farmers, who are nationalistic, declared a food boycott against the towns until Stresemann and his cabinet should resign. Immediately the hungry townspeople were locked into the country by thousands and burned and looted the farmsteads. They were fought by the police and their employees and by the police and there were many fatalities. The farmers' organizations, it is stated, could provide plenty of food for all of Germany until next March if they wished, but they will not do so until a nationalistic government is established.

ONCE more the Anglo-French entente, periodically smashed by the foreign correspondents, has been saved. Notwithstanding his fiery and defiant addresses, Premier Poincare yielded to the British view as to what was best to do in the matters of the return of the former crown prince to Germany and the resumption of the activities of the allies' military control commission, and agreed that there should be no threats of sanctions nor anything that might sound like an ultimatum to Germany. The British gave in on some minor points, and thereupon the council of ambassadors sent to Berlin two notes. In one the Germans were told that since Frederick William already had returned, he might remain as a private citizen, but the government was asked to see that no steps be taken to place him on the throne. It was also warned that it must not permit the former Kaiser to return. In the other communication Berlin was informed that "the operations of military control and aeronautic supervision must be resumed without delay under conditions which will be notified to the German government by the presidents of the commission of military control and the committee of aeronautic guarantee."

"Should these operations meet with obstruction from German authorities or German nationals, the allied governments intend to take measures which may seem to them proper to assure execution of the treaty."

It was understood that the Stresemann government would find the notes from the allies entirely satisfactory. The French press, except the government organs, was not so well pleased with them and the premier was rather severely criticized for his "surrender." But from his point of view Poincare seems justified. Prime Minister Baldwin faces a hard fight in the coming British elections, and one of the chief complaints against him is that he has suffered so many diplomatic defeats for his policies as has been the present cabinet. Therefore he could well afford to give Baldwin the diplomatic victory of last week. After the British elections the whole question may be reopened.

DESPITE the misgivings of Senator Lodge, Senator Smoot and some other Republican leaders who fear it may mean disaster for their party, President Coolidge has decided to support Secretary Mellon's tax reduction program, boldly and unreservedly. With a revenue surplus piling up it is the duty of the government to reduce the tax burden, the President holds, and he is confident that the radicals will be unable to put any extreme measure through congress. His attitude toward soldier bonus legislation has not been disclosed, but he probably will follow the example of President Harding and insist that if a bonus bill be passed, a means for financing it be provided by congress.

J. C. WALTON, suspended governor of Oklahoma, was found guilty of eleven of the sixteen charges presented to the senate court of impeachment and for corruption in office, moral turpitude, neglect of duty and general incompetence was removed from his office. The vote was 41 to 0. Walton's one consistent supporter, being absent. Six of the original charges were dismissed. No evidence for the defense was presented, for Walton had withdrawn his counsel after announcing that he could not stand the "humiliation of an unfair trial." His attorneys, however, intend to try to carry the case to the Supreme court of the United States. A grand jury in Oklahoma City considered the evidence on which the deposed governor was convicted and indicted him for criminal offenses.

DR. FREDERICK A. COOK, the Arctic explorer who gained notoriety by his bogus "discovery" of the North Pole years ago, and who of late has been a spectacular dealer in oil stocks, has come to the end of his rope. Tried before Federal Judge Kilts in Fort Worth, Tex., for misuse of the mails in connection with the operations of the Petroleum Producers' association, of which he was the sole trustee, he was found guilty and sentenced to fourteen years and nine months in prison and fined $12,000. Nineteen co-defendants were also found guilty. Judge Kilts in passing sentence denounced Cook scathingly for robbing widows and orphans, concluding: "You ought to be paraded as a practical warning in every state where you have sold stock."

SECRETARY OF COMMERCE HOOVER says the government is not considering any plan for the relief of the hungry people in Germany, though several persons have talked of the matter with the President. As to whether relief is needed, Mr. Hoover says the breakdown in distribution, coupled with considerable unemployment, has caused suffering in the poor districts. Uncertainty of business life has multiplied many times, but Germany as a whole is still a powerful country in business, agriculture, and trade. Purchases by Germany from the United States in the first six months of 1923 aggregated more than $143,000,000, or about 570,000,000 gold marks. The industrial plan of Germany is better than it was before the war, and there is even danger that it is overdeveloped. Crops throughout Germany are reported generally good, in some instances being the best for fifteen years or more.

Major General Allen's committee for relief of hungry German children is all ready to open its campaign for the collection of funds from American citizens and it is announced that at least $10,000,000 will be needed. The American Friends service committee will administer the fund and the German government will kindly attend to the insurance, warehouse and other overhead charges.

FRIENDS of Corea in America, who are organized, have filed with Secretary of State Hughes a formal protest against the alleged murder of about 500 Coreans during the great earthquake and fire in Tokyo and Yokohama. Dr. Floyd W. Thompson, president of the society, who signed the protest, declared an eyewitness saw 250 Coreans "bound hand and foot, placed on an old junk, covered with oil and burned alive." What Secretary Hughes can do about it is not indicated.

KING ALFONSO, Queen Victoria and Dictator Primo Rivera of Spain all went to Italy last week and were received by King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini with impressive ceremony. It was said a military alliance between the two countries would be signed to balance the alliance between France and Jugoslavia.

He was not a policeman, merely a civilian. Branks brooded a thankful sigh, and—stepped on the gas.—New York Sun and Globe.

The Millennium. "When," said the lecturer, earnestly, "when will we reach that happy state of civilization? When will life again be rich and full, and happy?" "I know," shouted a voice in the rear. "We'll get that way when socks and collars and drunks are two for a quarter."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

SHADE VETERAN OF 2 WARS

South Dakota Legion Man Had Many Experiences in Philippines and in France.

M. L. Shade of Mitchell, S. D., a veteran of two wars, has one recollection of army life that he claims is unforgettable, and at least is so unusual that experiences of any A. E. F. men cannot duplicate it, unless they be "gobs". Shade, an ardent American Legion worker in South Dakota, declares that he spent 90 days on an army transport without setting foot on shore, during the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection following.

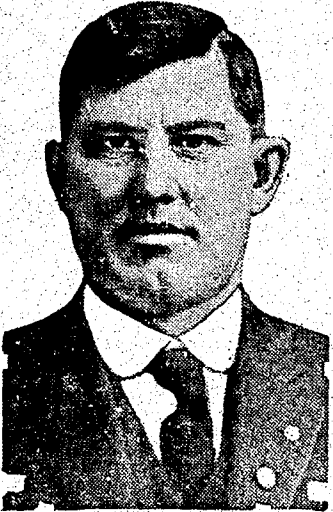

He was born in Princeton, Ill., in 1878, and at the age of fifteen was thrown on his own resources, with but a scant education gained in rural schools. His earlier life work was that of a laborer in mines, steel mills and on farms.

But the war with Spain came and he enlisted with an Iowa Guard regiment ordered to San Francisco, which embarked on the transport Covington for Manila. After a long sea voyage the boat was sailed into Manila bay, but orders were changed and the ship was sent southward with the troops. At Hilo Hilo the transport put in, but the troops were held up again. Back the ship went to Cavite, where, after 90 days, the men set foot ashore.

Shade served with his regiment in several severe engagements, and on discharge re-enlisted with another Philippine organization. In all, he fought in 222 battles. He was mustered out at Manila in 1901, remaining there for a period on confidential work for the government.

Back in the States, he became associated with life insurance firms in Rockford, Ill., and while there was a member of the National Guard. Then he went to Texas, where he was hit by the panic of 1907, but, undaunted, made his way back to Sioux Falls, S. D., joining the guard almost immediately after his arrival there. He served as chief of police of Mitchell, S. D., in 1911, and received a commission as major in the South Dakota Guard that year. He was called for border service in 1916, and was discharged early in 1917.

At the outbreak of the World war he was sent to Camp Greene, N. C., and was attached to the Forty-first division. During overseas service he commanded several ammunition guard units, served with the French at Soissons and was sent to St. Aignan-Noyers to establish a large replacement depot for motor transportation. He was later commissioned as lieutenant colonel and ordered to Romorantin, where he assumed command of the air service shops, built up from a personnel of 600 to 7,000 men. He virtually commanded all troop units at this camp.

Before he sailed for America he was cited for meritorious service and given a full colonelcy. On his arrival in South Dakota he was named to the state highway commission, of which he is now a member.

His work for the American Legion has been thorough and enthusiastic. He led the local post of the Legion during its early days and served in several capacities with this post. He was named as department commander in South Dakota in 1919-1920, and was national executive committee member during that time. He has been a delegate to all national conventions of the Legion and has served on convention committees of military policy and of finance.

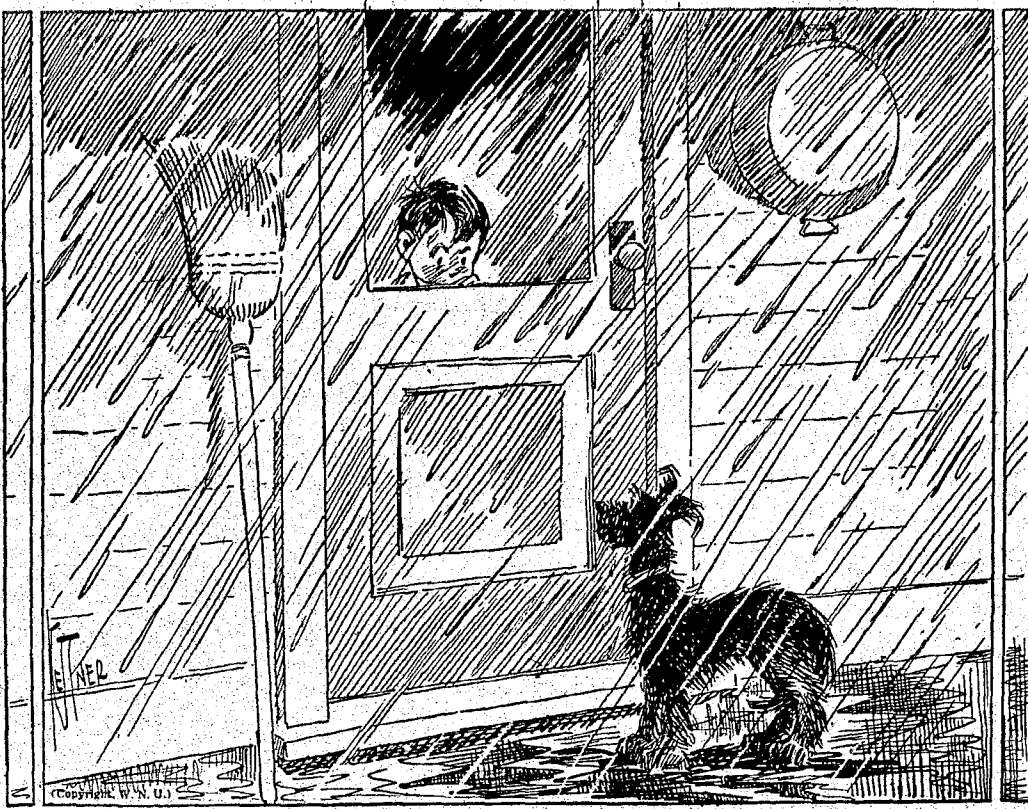

In all his reminiscences of army days, however, Colonel Shade declares that none are so vivid as those spent dodging around the Philippines on the army transport, seeking a place to land.

Removed Flags From Graves. Legion members in Rutherford, N. J., recently appeared before the city council to protest the action of municipal employees in removing flags from the graves of veterans in a local cemetery. The flags had been removed following a "clean up" of the burial place and were discovered by the Legion men in a dirt heap outside the cemetery.

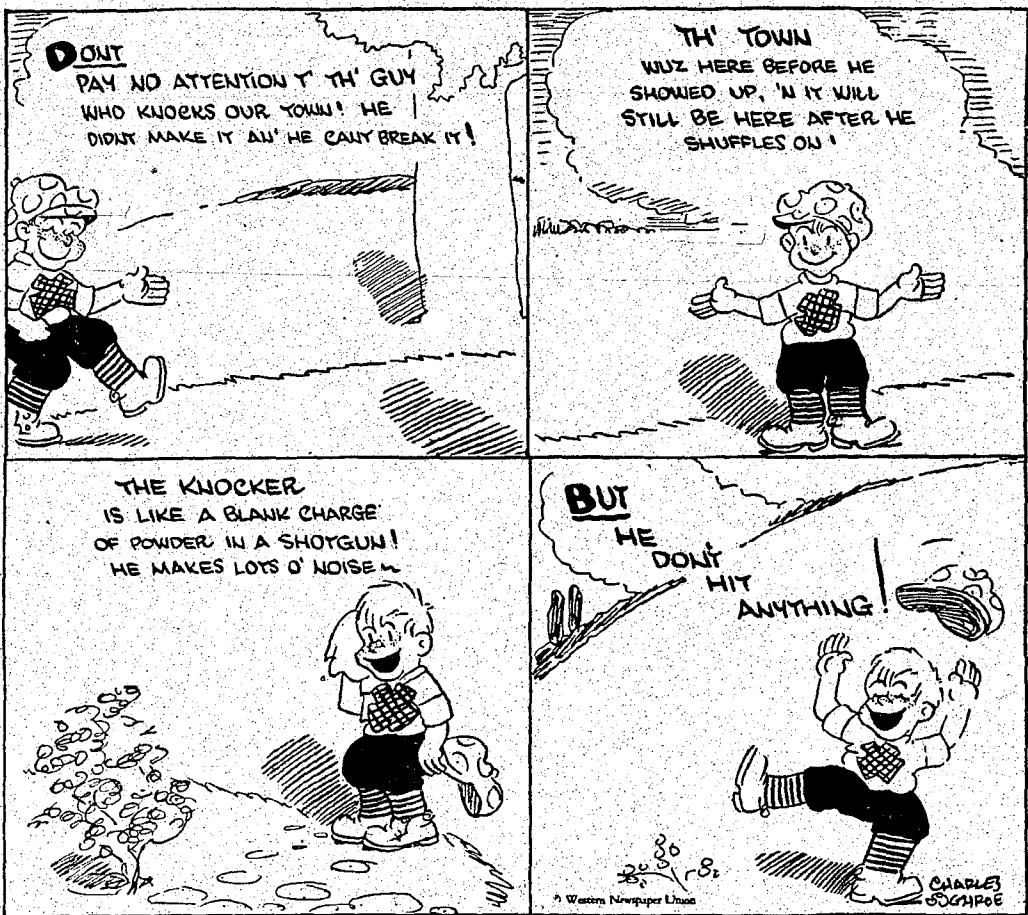

Foch Praised Legion. That the principles of the American Legion are those for which France is fighting at the present time is the assertion of Marshal Foch in a recent message to Legion national headquarters in Indianapolis. "I am happy to repeat to the American Legion my sentiments of sincere attachment," the message stated. "The Legion has demonstrated that it remains faithful to the principles that governed its foundation. These principles are those for which France is fighting at this time."

Words of Wisdom From the Young

Now Fanny Takes Bosco to Walk

Carpets in Homer's Time

Hundreds of years ago, when Europeans were living in houses with bare floors or floors strewn with rushes or twigs, carpets were being used in China, India and Egypt. The first carpets were rugs to sit upon, taking the place of chairs, says the Detroit News. In Homer's time, either plain or embroidered carpets were spread before the couches of the guests in Greek houses. Later on rich and gay carpets were imported to Greece from Babylon. These carpets had faded figures of men and animals and were made in gorgeous colors. In later Roman times carpets were imported from the Orient.

The House of Commons. The British house of commons had its origin in the reign of Henry III in 1258, when Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester, ordered two knights from each shire, and deputies from certain boroughs to meet such of the barons and clergy as were favorable to his cause, with the view to strengthening his own power against that of the king. Triennial parliaments were instituted by the law of 1641. On the accession of George I in 1714 the Septennial act fixed the duration of parliament at seven years.

Thirst-Resisting African Sheep. The Barbary sheep is one of the thirst-resisting animals of Africa, and can exist almost a week without drink.

Things to Give for Christmas

Fancy Needlework.

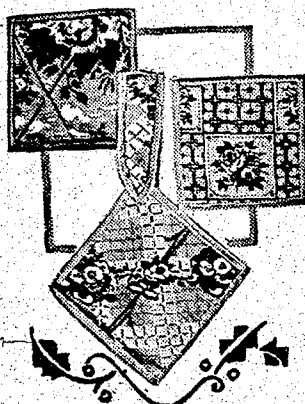

Everybody goes about the ordinary business of life in plain dresses of dark woolen cloth, that depend upon collar and cuff sets to lend them variety and a dainty flavor. Therefore these sets are among the most acceptable of Christmas gifts. An endless variety of embroideries in white or in bright colors, comes by the yard, in straight or curved sections. One has only to stitch these sections to bands of lawn, to make a set like that pictured. Other sets are made of net, lace and sheer fabrics—the last finished with needlework in embroidery or fancy stitches.

Lace Dance Hats.

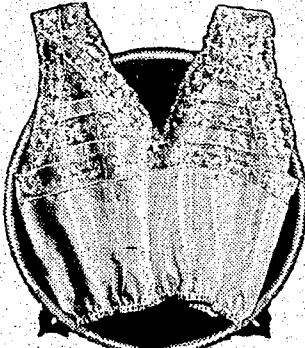

Gold or silver lace and a bit of gay chiffon or mullins will serve to make the pretty dance cap, with soft crown and up-rolling brim, as shown here. Tiny flowers at the front and a ribbon sash adorn it. The brim is supported by two fine wires.

For Housewives.

Housewives will appreciate holders for handling hot dishes and kitchen utensils. They are simply squares made of bright cretonne, padded with woolen cloth. A container for them is provided with a hanger, so that they can be hung up near the kitchen stove.

Dainty Lingerie.

Among the prettiest gifts that women can make for one another are camisoles of wash silk, lace and ribbons. Some of them have ribbon straps over the shoulders; others are shaped like the one pictured here, which shows alternating rows of insertion and ribbon finished with lace edging.

Screen for Telephone.

Either men or women friends will appreciate a pretty telephone screen for a gift. Here is one with a foundation of cardboard, covered with satin and ornamented with triangles of tapestry or figured ribbon, finished with gold braid. The reverse side is lined with plain silk.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

How many people think the world is drab-colored and life a failure, and so have done or said something they regret all their lives, when a vegetable pill or a brisk walk would have changed their vision completely.

A COLLECTION OF GOOD CAKES

A good cake is appreciated and enjoyed at any season, but at Christmas time with the family gatherings and home-comings cake is one of the reliable and always popular foods. In most homes a tasty cake which is good without being too costly is the one we look for. A sour cream cake will be one we will like.

Sour Cream Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of shortening with one cupful of sugar, add one-half cupful of molasses, two eggs, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda, two cupfuls of pastry flour, one cupful of sour cream, three-fourths of a cupful of raisins; add the dry ingredients well mixed, alternately with the sour cream. Add the raisins and the same amount of chopped nuts at the last. Beat well, pour into a large loaf pan and bake about three-quarters of an hour.

Texas Pecan Cake.—Cream three-fourths of a cupful of shortening, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, mix well. Sift together three cupfuls of pastry flour, three tablespoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, add alternately with one cupful of milk and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites at the last. Bake in three layers and put together with boiled frosting, using two cupfuls of sugar and two egg whites. Add a cupful of chopped pecan meats just before spreading onto the cake. Fewer nutmeats may be used where they are a dollar a pound.

Sunshine Cake (Two Eggs).—Take one-fourth of a cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar, two eggs, one-half cupful of sifted squash, one and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half cupful of hot milk and a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Mix as usual, adding the hot milk at the last with the extract. Bake as a loaf or in layers.

Red springs the eye.
As autumn days decline,
And from the brilliant sky
Less florid splendors shine.

Its airy, lustrous line
The gossamer displays,
And faintly breathes the pine
In autumn days.

CANDY FOR EVERYBODY

Who doesn't enjoy a nice piece of homemade candy?

Sea Foam.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of corn syrup, one-fourth of a cupful of boiling water, two egg whites, one-half cupful of chopped nuts and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Cook until the mixture makes a hard ball in water or hairs from a form, add one-half cupful of nuts and the vanilla and pour over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Beat until nearly firm then drop by spoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet.

Molasses Candy.—Take three cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of molasses, one cupful of butter and flavor to taste. Boil all the ingredients except the flavoring until it makes a hard ball in water. Pour into a greased platter and when cool enough pull. The flavoring is added just as it is poured out. Some like a peppermint flavored candy; any kind may be used to suit the taste.

Peanut Butter Fudge.—Place two cupfuls of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of milk in a saucepan and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Let it boil vigorously, stirring a little until the mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Remove from the fire and add four tablespoonfuls of peanut butter. Stir until the butter is melted, then beat until creamy. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla and one-third of a cupful of sultana raisins. Turn into greased pans and cut into squares when cool.

After-Dinner Mints.—Take three cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one-half cupful of boiling water, one-half tablespoonful of vinegar. Boil until it becomes brittle in water. Pour out on a buttered platter. Pull, adding two drops of the oil of peppermint. Put into a tight glass jar after pulling and cutting, into small pieces. Let stand ten days and it will be creamy and delicious.

Chocolate Fudge.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, one of brown and one of white, add one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two squares of melted chocolate and one-third of a cupful of corn syrup. Cook to the soft ball stage and cool before beating; beat until nearly stiff, then pour into a buttered pan and mark off into squares before it gets too hard.

Eliminate Extra Steps. By carefully arranging utensils and supplies to eliminate extra steps and motions, experimenters at University of Washington have demonstrated that a housewife can cut nearly eleven minutes from the time ordinarily taken to make a lemon pie.

Ridiculous. The most ridiculous thing we know of is the how-legged dancing master trying to make a knock-kneed flapper take the step just as he goes it.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound four years ago, and am taking it now for the Change of Life and other troubles and I receive great benefit from it. I am willing to let you use my letter as a testimonial because it is the truth. I found your booklet in my letter-box and read it carefully, and that is how I came to take the Vegetable Compound myself. It has given me quiet nerves so that I sleep all night, and a better appetite. I have recommended it already to all my friends and relatives."—Mrs. ENGLISHMAN, 2032 Palmetto St., Ridgewood, Brooklyn, N. Y.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of success and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Englishman. You should give it a fair trial now.

Interested in Both Sides. While the court awaited the arrival of the parties to the suit, the judge turned to one of the lawyers and asked: "For which of the parties are you concerned, Mr. Moriarty?" "Well, your honor, I represent the plaintiff, but I am concerned for the defendant," replied Moriarty.

Help That Achy Back!

LIVESTOCK LEGUMES LIMESTONE MEAN PROFITS IN FARMING

Money-Making Idea No. 4.

Get rid of your poor cows. Feed the good ones liberally this winter, of a balanced grain ration—one pound of the grain to four pounds of milk.

Prosperity Follows the Dairy Cow. Cows, with hens as a side line, can bring prosperity to Crawford County farmers.

Cows make milk out of what they eat. If they do not eat the right kind of things they cannot, and do not, give all the milk and butterfat that they are capable of giving.

What's the Big Thing?

Protein is the big thing in milk-making. A cow cannot do her best unless she gets all the protein she needs. Every milking she may fall short several quarts of her real capacity to produce, just because she has used up the available protein in her system.

Where This Stuff Is Found.

Protein is found chiefly, around here, in bran, middlings, cottonseed meal, linseed meal, oats, clover hay, alfalfa hay, soy bean hay, vetch hay, sweet clover hay.

Farmers Poor Feeders.

Farmers are often poor feeders of dairy cows.

Three Reasons Why.

First Reason. Because the farmer sometimes does not know that protein in feeds is a good thing. Second reason. Because the farmer did not raise enough of the right feed.

Third reason. Because the farmer hates to buy the right feed; though, it would pay him to buy it, if his cows are any good.

Seems to Cost More, but Doesn't. Though cottonseed meal and linseed meal cost more per ton than bran or ground oats, yet they are cheaper to feed than bran or oats.

A hundred pounds of cottonseed meal or linseed meal contains three times as much protein as bran; but, costs less than twice as much as bran. Feeds containing lots of protein are really cheapest to buy. In them you always get the most for a dollar.

Are You Interested?

Anyone interested in getting the right cow feed; or, in balancing up with purchased grain any home grown feeds they may have on hand, should drop into the county agent's office and talk it over.

Use your County Agent.

Farmers are manufacturers of raw stuff into finished product. They ought to chip in together and buy their dairy feeds in car lots. They will never really prosper until they do.

How Long Would They Last?

How long would the manufacturer of furniture or flooring last if he ran to the local retail lumber yard every few days and bought little dribbles of lumber as we farmers buy feed in little dribbles?

If they would soon go broke, what's to save us farmers if we buy in dribbles, a bag at a time?

Let's wake up and get a move on. Prosperity follows the dairy cow—if she is a good cow, well fed.

FUNK SCHOOL NOTES.

An education is worth every effort that it takes not for the mere dollars and cents that it will bring, but for the power that it gives a man to get and enjoy the best things in life.

This being education week we are striving to do all we can to better our work. We would be glad to have the parents visit us at any time. The $25 taken in at the box social has been invested in a new drinking fountain.

We are starting a teeth cleaning contest to last for four months. The one who cleans his teeth both morning and night for four months is to get a tooth brush and a tube of tooth paste.

COUNTY AGENTS ARE POPULAR AT GRANGE MEETING.

Delegates Praise Agents' Work But Can't Agree as to Whose Is Best.

Muskegon, Nov.—That county agricultural agents and their programs rank high with Grange members was strikingly demonstrated during the recent session of the Michigan State Grange. When the resolution endorsing the State Board of Agriculture with reference to extension work was up for consideration, one farmer rose and asked for the experience of some of the other counties, declaring that the results in his county had been none too satisfactory.

And right there that delegate started something. The assembly was transformed from a social convention into a fervent revival and testimony experience meeting. All over the hall men began to pop up, eager to tell their experiences with county agents and extension work in their home communities and to add their testimony to his value.

The situation soon threatened to develop into a heated argument as to which county agent had done the most good. Each speaker chanted the praises of his local agent, telling of his successful efforts to increase soil fertility, secure better seed and higher quality farm crops, introduce and develop better livestock, control insect pests and plant and animal diseases, and to promote co-operative buying and selling by the farmers.

Finally one Granger summed up the situation by saying, "If your agent isn't satisfactory, fire him; but don't abolish the system." Another delegate added, "Your county agent is your hired man, but he isn't a mind reader. Don't expect him to hunt you up unsolicited. He is a busy man. Go to him with your problems and my experience leads me to believe that he will do all in his power to help you."

Finally State Master A. B. Cook called a halt to the proceedings and asked if anybody had anything to say against the county agents. It appeared that nobody did, so the resolution of hearty endorsement was put to a vote and passed unanimously. If the attitude of these Grangers is any indication of general farmer sentiment it would appear that the county agricultural agents are pretty popular fellows with the men whom they serve.

FARMER LOANS UP IN MILLIONS

Wheat Growers Fail To Use Government's Credit Facilities.

Washington—Approximately $32,000,000 has been loaned by the federal intermediate credit banks to aid the farmers in financing the production and marketing of this year's crops.

Farm loan board officials, in announcing the figures, said they failed to show that the wheat growers had taken advantage of the government's latest credit facilities, although appeals for financial assistance recently have come from the wheat areas. Of the loans made direct to farmer organizations only $2,243,896 was lent on wheat, loan board officials said.

There was no explanation of this at the farm loan board headquarters, and Commissioner Cooper declared that the credit banks had taken care of all applications for wheat loans. The board's figures disclosed that $24,000,000 of the total amount advanced was in the form of loans made directly to co-operative and other farmer associations. The remainder went to agricultural credit corporations and to banks which rediscounted agricultural paper with the credit banks. Included in the loans to farmer organizations were advances of $12,652,435 on cotton; $5,316,444 on tobacco; $1,800,000 on raisins; $252,484 on rice; $50,000 on broom corn; $1,307,278 on canned fruit; $193,902 on wool, and $28,800 on red top seed.

What Do You Read Evenings?

With old Sol tucking himself into bed early, there will be lots of time for evening reading in the next few months. It's wisdom to lay in a supply of good books and magazines now. Here is one of the best bargains of its kind in the world:

THE OPEN ROAD, an interesting monthly magazine, and your choice of these famous books: Blazed Trail—Stewart Edw. White. The Trimmed Lamp—O. Henry. Lord Jim—Joseph Conrad. Return of Sherlock Holmes—C. Doyle. Haunted Bookshop—Chris. Morley. Magnificent Ambersons—B. Tarkington. Ivanhoe—Sir Walter Scott. Alice's Adv. in Wonderland—L. Carroll.

Separately they would cost $3.40 but the combination price is only $2.60. The books are full size, richly bound in English red leather, and beautifully printed,—a splendid addition to your library or a fine Christmas gift for your best friends.

The Open Road comes 12 times a year. It's a magazine that hits the "men folks" just right, and the women and girls are reading it with equal interest. Stirring stories of life in the great cities, in the deep woods and on western plains fill the pages of The Open Road, also articles on business opportunities, athletics, exploration and adventure in far countries, and on the personal problems of life. President Coolidge has recommended The Open Road highly.

It's a helpful as well as an entertaining magazine,—just what your family will enjoy.

Don't delay getting this remarkable double bargain. Send today to The Open Road, 248 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

How a Grayling Citizen Found Freedom From Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—From urinary disorders—Any curable disease of the kidneys, Use a tested kidney remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills have been tested by thousands.

Grayling people testify. Ask your neighbor!

Can you ask more convincing proof of merit?

Mrs. Charles Austin, Maple St., Grayling, says: "My back caused trouble and mornings when I got up, I felt tired out. It seemed as though my back always ached, especially when I did any stooping or lifting. I couldn't sleep at all and felt tired and worn out and became nervous, irritable and depressed. Black spots before my eyes, which bothered me greatly in the morning made me dizzy and I had headaches and was so run down, I didn't know what to do. I saw how well Doan's Kidney Pills were liked so I got several boxes at Lewis' Drug Store and after using them, I was cured."
